

together we can make a difference

A story well known in Australia has been Jane and Glenn McGrath's much-publicised experience with breast cancer which led to the formation of what has become one of Australia's most respected and recognised breast cancer charities, the McGrath Foundation.

It was Jane's personal experience that led her to believe that the McGrath Foundation should raise money to ensure every family in Australia experiencing breast cancer has access to a specialised breast care nurse no matter where they live or their financial situation. As a result, the McGrath Foundation is today considered to be one of Australia's leading breast cancer support organisations, with over 22,000 families across Australia supported by our 87 McGrath Breast Care Nurses in the last four years*.

The Foundation estimates that 150 McGrath Breast Care Nurses are needed nationally to ensure every family in Australia has access to a McGrath Breast Care Nurse. Only then, will every family in this situation have access to optimal care.

With a McGrath Breast Care Nurse in every State and Territory throughout Australia, families experiencing breast cancer can self refer to their nearest McGrath Breast Care Nurse (ie they do not require a medical referral) and be supported by one of our McGrath Breast Care Nurses free of charge.

At the same time, the McGrath Foundation is working to increase breast awareness right across the community. Jane's breast cancer diagnosis at only 31 made her passionate about encouraging all women, including younger women (under 40), to be breast aware by regularly checking their breasts for any changes. The McGrath Foundation's breast awareness initiative, Curve Curve, has been developed to ensure the next generation of Australian's, particularly young women are breast aware.

By purchasing from this range, you are helping us place McGrath Breast Care Nurses in communities right across Australia, and helping us to increase breast awareness in young Australians. For more information on how you can help make a difference, visit www.mcgrathfoundation.com.au.

As we say at the McGrath Foundation – together, we can make a difference!
